THE AU COMMISSION HIV/AIDS STRATEGIC PLAN 2005-2007 AND AIDS WATCH AFRICA (AWA) STRATEGIC PLAN

THE AU COMMISSION HIV/AIDS STRATEGIC PLAN 2005-2007 AND AIDS WATCH AFRICA (AWA) STRATEGIC PLAN

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. The main objective of the AU Commission HIV/AIDS Strategic Plan is to accelerate action towards combating a continental emergency as was declared by Heads of State due to the immense toll on African populations by HIV/AIDS and its vast impact on Africa's socio-economic development. Thus it is meant to enhance ongoing programmes for more effective implementation of the 2001 Abuja Declaration and Plan of Action on HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis (TB) and Other Related Infectious Diseases as well as subsequent commitments of African Leaders. The Strategic Plan falls within the framework of the AU Commission Action Plan 2004-2007 specifically Social Development, Programme No.20: Stop HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, and Programme No. 21: Fight Poverty and Social Exclusion. The AU Commission HIV/AIDS Strategic Plan is, in other words aimed at accelerating action for faster progress towards attaining the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), particularly Goal 6: Combat HIV/AIDS, Malaria and Other diseases; as well as the Commitment for Action of the June 2001 UN General assembly Special Session on AIDS. Furthermore, the AU Commission was requested to work with partners to assist Member States in formulating a continent-wide policy for an international assistance strategy for mobilization of additional financial resources.

2. It will be recalled that at the 2001 Abuja Summit on HIV/AIDS, TB and Other Related Infectious Diseases, eight Heads of State and Government got together and created AIDS Watch Africa (AWA) as an advocacy platform at Head of State level to monitor the African response and mobilize resources. Originally coordinated from Abuja, AWA was relocated to the AU Commission by the July 2004 Summit Decision and has become operational. The AWA Strategic Plan is therefore a response to the mandate by Heads of State and Government.

3. The AU Commission HIV/AIDS Strategic Plan 2005-2007 and the AWA Strategic Plan have been prepared through two Technical Consultations (December 2004 and May 2005), comprising a wide range of stakeholders from Member States, International organizations and AU Commission Departments and Programmes. The technical and financial contributions of UNAIDS, WHO, UNFPA and other UN Agencies and International Organizations towards this process are commended. Their sustained support and involvement in operationalizing the Strategic Plans are also anticipated.

4. The AU Commission HIV/AIDS Strategic Plan 2005-2007 is presented in eight sections as follows: Introduction, Statement of Need, the Strategic Plan (Mission, Vision and Strategic objectives), Implementation Structure, Proposed Budget, Action Time-lines, Expected Outcomes, and Monitoring and Evaluation Mechanism. The Strategic Objectives include: Leadership and Advocacy, Accountability, Harmonization and Coordination, Capacity Strengthening, Programme Priorities and Mobilization of Human and Financial Resources. The AIDS Watch Africa (AWA) Strategic Plan is included in the overall AU Commission Strategic Plan, but with an annex bearing a detailed one-year Action Plan. The AWA Strategic Objectives include: Advocacy for Emergency Action, Advocacy for Resources, Advocacy for Results, and Information for Action. Other annexes include: a list of priority African Institutions or Organs to support the Strategic Plans, the Implementation Structure, and a Preliminary Monitoring and Evaluation Mechanism.

5. The AU Commission Strategic Plan 2005-2007 is presented for information and enrichment; while the section on AIDS Watch Africa Strategic Plan is submitted for consideration by the AU Assembly.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. One of the main challenges facing Africa in the 21st Century is the devastating impact of the HIV/AIDS pandemic on sustainable political, social and economic development, in the face of poverty and other challenges. The Millennium Summit held in 2000 took cognizance of this fact by establishing global targets and to eradicate extreme poverty and hunger and to combat HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases. The AU Commission was part of the process that culminated the UNAIDS publication, "AIDS in Africa: Three Scenarios for 2025", which represent a crucial step in making sense of the future of the AIDS epidemic in Africa. This will depend on the various forces driving the epidemic, the lessons learnt from the past 20 years and the response and investment into AIDS control.

2. In April 2001, African Leaders met in Abuja, Nigeria to address this exceptional challenge. In the "Abuja Declaration on HIV/AIDS, Tuberculosis and Other Related Infectious Diseases of 2001," the African Heads of State and Government declared: "AIDS as a state of emergency in the Continent" and committed themselves to, among others, take personal responsibility and provide leadership from the front and mobilize society as a whole and provide focus in the fight against these diseases. Furthermore, they set a target on allocating at least 15% of the annual national budgets to improvement of the health sector. They also called upon the international agencies to assist Member States in formulating a continent-wide policy for an international assistance strategy for mobilization of additional financial resources, and upon donor countries to complement local resource mobilization efforts through fulfilling the target of 0.7% of their GDP as ODA to developing countries. The Leaders unanimously supported the creation of the Global AIDS Fund which was later realized as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (Global Fund) or (GFATM) at the June 2001 UN General Assembly Special Session on AIDS.

3. At the Abuja Special Summit, eight Heads of State, UN Secretary General and the Secretary General of the then OAU joined together to establish AIDS Watch Africa (AWA), to monitor and spearhead the implementation of the Abuja Declaration at highest level of political leadership. The AWA was initially coordinated in Abuja under the auspices of its Chairperson, H.E. President Olusegun Obasanjo of Nigeria. At the July 2004 Assembly of Heads of State and Government, a Decision was taken to reposition and integrate AWA at the African Union Commission in Addis Ababa for more effectiveness.

4. In July 2002 at Durban, South Africa, the African Union (AU) was formally established to coordinate the promotion and acceleration of sustainable political, cultural, social and economic development and integration in Africa during the 21st Century. In this regard, two of the key programmes in its Strategic Work Plan is harmonizing and coordinating the intensified efforts to stop HIV/AIDS, malaria, tuberculosis and other pandemics; and to fight Poverty and Social Exclusion. Formulation of the African Union Commission HIV/AIDS Strategic Plan 2005-2007 and the AWA Strategic Plan is, therefore, in the framework of implementation of the mandate of African Leaders.

II. STATEMENT OF NEED

5. The African HIV/AIDS pandemic is wreaking unparalleled havoc and has directly influenced the lives of millions of individuals and families, communities and nations across the Continent. The pandemic has already killed 25 million people, a staggering further 40 million worldwide are living with HIV/AIDS. Yet the pandemic continues to spread unchecked with six million new infections occurring globally each year.

6. Africa suffers an agonisingly disproportionate share of the devastating burden of the pandemic. Out of the 25 million AIDS deaths that have occurred, 22 million are Africans; of the 40 million infected, 25 million of these are Africans; of the 6 million new annual infections, 3 million are occurring in Africa. This death toll is equivalent to five jumbo jets airliners crashing daily. Over 12 million children live as AIDS-orphans, up by 30% from 2001 and forecast to reach 18 million by 2008. The situation would be worse in the rural areas where testing and surveillance systems are very weak or non-existent.

7. The effects of HIV/AIDS are all pervasive and insidious across all spheres of life including culture, the economy, health, agriculture, education and international relations. The lives of millions are affected and blighted directly in one way or another. HIV/AIDS has therefore rightly been declared as a global and continental security threat, crossing borders at will, stunting economic growth and tearing up the fabric of societies and communities. The life expectancy of African populations has been slashed down by 20 years, and the GDP of the continent is losing billions of dollars annually. The pandemic has precipitated yet another crisis in the continent. It indeed is a silent Tsunami for Africa.

8. The underlying root causes of the disproportionate affliction of Africa by the pandemic are numerous but key among them are: poverty and exclusion, governance and accountability, gender differences and inequality, as women have a greater biological vulnerability to infection, earlier onset of sexual activity, lower socio-economic status and economic dependence. This is aggravated by potentially harmful cultural practices, the inability to negotiate safe sex, the effects of armed and social conflicts, sexual violence and discrimination and the non-recognition of the importance of reproductive health and sexual rights. The pandemic has also weakened the response mechanisms as it has the capacity to undermine and weaken cultural foundations of society, to lower agricultural and economic output and has stretched and weakened health and education systems. It is an efficient self-sustaining enemy.

9. The grave threat posed to the future of Africa by HIV/AIDS and the challenge of mounting an effective response have been recognised in Africa and by the international community. A Special summit of African Heads of State and Governments was convened at Abuja, Nigeria in April, 2001, this was followed in June 2001 by a Special Session of the UN General Assembly on HIV/AIDS as well as an earlier Millennium Summit in 2000 were all dedicated to seeking solutions to the pandemic, among other challenges. There have, in the meantime, been heroic coping responses by individual women and men, children and adults, households and families, communities and countries in Africa and abroad. However, much more remains to be done and urgently.

10. The AUC has therefore identified the control of HIV/AIDS and other pandemics as one of the Priority Programmes within the African Union Vision, Mission and Strategic Plan 2005-2007, to speed up continental integration in the short term under Action Areas of Social Development.

11. This Strategic Plan serves five main purposes in respect to HIV/AIDS:

- (i) To provide a framework for AUC policies and programmes;
- (ii) To provide guidelines for AUC coordination and support on AWA;
- (iii) To provide a road map for use by the AUC in implementing the activities already identified in priority programmes of the AUC;
- (iv) To facilitate the mobilisation of the resources urgently needed to mount an exceptional response to the emergency posed by the HIV/AIDS pandemic both to the AUC and the continent as a whole;
- (v) To strengthen the capacity of the AUC, particularly the Social Affairs Department, in collaboration with the relevant Departments of the African Union Commission (Peace and Security; Political Affairs; Human Resources; Women, Gender and Development Directorate, Human Resources, Science and Technology, Agriculture and Rural Economy, NEPAD programme, etc) Regional Economic Communities (RECs), continental, regional, and international stakeholders;

III. INSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS AND IMPLEMENTATION

12. This plan identifies the need for and added value of an African Union role in combating the continental emergency of HIV and AIDS. The initial draft was developed by a core team, revised at and following a consultation hosted by the AU in December 2004, and then subjected to extensive peer review at a meeting hosted by the African Union held in Addis Ababa from 26-28 May. Participants included representatives of National AIDS Councils, UN agencies, civil society and the African Union.

13. The plan specifies the unique niche that the African Union should and intends to play in the in accelerating action to combat this continental emergency by using its comparative advantage as a continental organ and as a democratic institution expressing the will of African countries and thereby its people. However, this does not mean that the AU, while taking responsibility for successful implementation of the plan, should or intends to implement all of it on its own. At the same time, there are those functions that are core responsibilities of the AU Commission and its NEPAD Programme and capacity to fulfil these will be developed. At the same time as the AU is not an implementation agency, it is well placed to advocate, co-ordinate, harmonize and monitor, and these roles are the ones enunciated for it in the strategy. The AU is also committed to tracking progress and to communication about this programme and feedback on its progress. The envisaged website will be a key source of information, but the AU will also reach out to stakeholders. The media also have an important responsibility to pick up on and report about the programme across the continent and internationally.

14. Success will be contingent upon the achievement of innovative and effective partnerships between the AU and the multiple stakeholders that are well placed to work for and in support of the plan. These include the Regional Economic Communities, for which a clear delineation of responsibilities and mutually reinforcing activities between them and the AU will be negotiated. It also includes deep involvement of countries, with a very specific alignment of the AU function to that of National AIDS Councils. Civil society, the private sector and people living with HIV and AIDS will also be invited to make their contribution. It is also envisaged that key support functions will be undertaken by African Institutions and Centres of Excellence and United Nations Agencies, in particular their African regions.

15. The action plan specifies not only deliverables and indicators, but also a proposal on which actions different implementation partners might become involved in and the budget, infrastructure and core staff required to deliver on the plan.

16. The emergence of the Presidential AIDS Watch Africa (PAWA) as a group of committed Heads of State provides a unique opportunity for high level advocacy on the HIV and AIDS crisis on the continent – both what is required to overcome it, as well as on progress Africa has achieved. The decision to move its secretariat to the AU Commission in Addis Ababa is an endorsement by these Heads of State of the role of the AU and the need to weave this in as an integral thread of the AU's AIDS programme. Because of its unique role and location in the AU and the potential for overlapping functions it was felt that it would be appropriate to include its objectives, strategies and action plan in the presentation of the AU plan.

17. PAWA provides a forum for high level monitoring and advocacy and lobbying both on the continent and beyond. However, the ability for the Heads of State to successfully and comprehensively advocate for emergency action, resources and results and provide information to galvanize faster action is dependent on the secretariat based at the AU being able to prepare or mobilise other agencies to prepare the necessary briefs and draft advocacy materials for the PAWA Heads of State to consider. They have expressed their deepest commitment and resolve and this plan now puts in place the support infrastructure for success.

18. Without resources this plan will not succeed. The Plan, therefore, provides an estimated budget that will establish a small but critical mass of staff at the AU. Albeit thrifty, if used well the budget will enable the programme to be successfully implemented. The AU will contribute towards this capacity from its core budget, but will require additional support. It is hoped that the involvement of development partners and multilateral organisations in the consultative meeting and the incorporation of their ideas into the working groups has led to a sense of joint ownership of the plan that will translate into material support. It is further anticipated that the strong support offered to the plan by the Heads or Representatives of the National AIDS Councils, together with the AU Heads of State Decisions on HIV and AIDS will lead to effective co-ordination of effort and support for the continental role that will be undertaken by the AU and its institutions. In this regard the NEPAD programme and its African Peer Review Mechanism have a special responsibility.

19. The comprehensive African response to the HIV/AIDS pandemic will be led and coordinated by the African Union through the various organs and institutions. The Assembly of Heads of State and Governments, AIDS Watch Africa (AWA) which is an advocacy Committee of eight African Heads of State and Government, the African Union Commission (AUC) and the NEPAD Programme, the Pan-African Parliament, the Regional Economic Communities, and African sub-regional institutions and of course the Member States themselves and their populations in the public sector, civil society organisations, organizations of people living with and affected by HIV/AIDS as well as the private sector.

20. The AU will take advantage of the opportunity now availed by the challenge of HIV/AIDS to streamline its control into the wider thrust to promote good governance and accountability, to reclaim the struggle for the promotion and protection of human rights and the dignity and worth of every African individual man, woman and child. The elimination of armed and social conflicts which are known vehicles that fuel the pandemic are part and parcel of the aspirations of Africa of the 21st Century and constitute integral components of the comprehensive African response.

21. In particular, AWA, will be facilitated to play a leading role in mobilising African Heads of State and Governments to prioritise the control of HIV/AIDS, mobilize resources, monitor progress through the African Peer Review Mechanism (APRM) and sustain the necessary dialogue on the pandemic at meetings of the AU Assembly, and in global arenas. The AUC has been charged with the role of leadership, advocacy, harmonisation, capacity development, change agent, coordination and promotion of regional integration and setting standards and guidelines, and monitoring performance. The AUC has also been charged with strengthening Africa's position within the international community and acting as "interface between Africa and the rest of the world." In that capacity, the AUC will promote meaningful engagement with the international community which is a crucial and essential component of the comprehensive African response.

ANNEX 2. OUTLINE OF AIDS WATCH AFRICA (AWA) ONE-YEAR ACTION PLAN

I. PREAMBLE

The challenge of the HIV/AIDS pandemic to Africa's growth and development is clear, and reversing the spread of this disease is central to sustainable socio-economic development, social cohesion, political stability, food security and continuing the critical flow of international trade and foreign investment in the continent. In response to this crisis, eight African leaders joined together in 2001 to create AIDS Watch Africa to monitor progress of the Abuja Declaration implementation. Based on the experiences to date, and with the advent of the Africa Union, during 2004 these leaders decided to integrate AWA into the efforts of the Africa Union Commission. AWA is now being re-launched to galvanize the continental response to the crises of HIV/AIDS and of orphans and vulnerable children (OVC). African leaders are declaring that the "African Renaissance is Now!" and they are mobilizing all possible efforts nationally, regionally, and globally to ensure that each and every African person can fulfil her or his full potential at this time in history.
