6. Commissioner Jean-Pierre Ezin in his welcome remarks welcomed all the participants. He highly appreciated the important participation from the Member States and linked that level of response to the momentum raised since Malabo towards the youth agenda in Africa. HE Prof. Ezin also recognized and expressed gratitude to all the Partners and Youth representatives present at the conference, which showed the importance attached to the youth development. Then, Commissioner Ezin stressed on the justification of the new format of the Conference and hope that the proposed approach will involve all the participants, especially the ministers in the in-depth reflection of the important issues to be addressed during the coming three days He also expressed his hope for the strong recommendations that will emerge from their debate and guide to concrete and immediate actions.

7. On behalf of Mr Andile Lungisa, President of the Pan African Youth Union (PYU), the Secretary General M. Abdoulaye Toure welcomed the commitment shown to young people by our Africa Heads of States, through the Summit held last year in Malabo, and their decisions aimed at improving youth development in Africa. He further urged member states to ensure that these commitments are translated into action so that it can make sense to the young people of Africa in rural areas, young people living with disability, HIV/AIDS, young women and other marginalized groups. The speaker mentioned that PYU continues to lobby for the ratification, domestication and implementation of the African Youth Charter at member states level and urge governments to ensure that their national youth policies are in tandem with the African Youth Charter.

8. PYU continued to call on governments to increase their budgetary support to youth development and also call for their strengthening of national youth councils, national co-coordinating bodies and youth organizations in all countries. In closing; the PYU President invited COMY IV participants to help them celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the PYU, after its creation in Guinea Conakry in 1962, under the theme "Youth Action, for Economic Freedom Now!"

9. Hon. Jean Philibert Nsengimana, Minister of Youth Affairs of Rwanda and chairperson of the COMY III greeted the participants and mentioned that This COMY IV 4 session convenes under the theme: "Africa Deliver as one on youth development". It comes after a series of other important events that led to equally important outcomes. Notable among them are the Heads of states and Governments of the AU meeting of January 2009 in Addis Ababa that issued the African Youth Decade and Plan of action, the previous edition of this session in Victoria Falls, Zimbabwe in April 2010, but most importantly, the 17th summit of African Heads of states and governments in Malabo under the theme of Accelerating Youth Empowerment for sustainable Development.

10. The honourable minister further retaliated that COMY IV seeks to review the progress that we have been able to accomplish collectively and individually as member states.

11. In particular, the minister called for more use ICT platforms to maintain our team spirit within the COMY 4 bureau, our fraternity of youth ministers and for the efficient communication and coordination between the HRST and member states.

Item II: GOVERNANCE: ELECTION OF THE COMY III BUREAU MEMBERS

12. Prior to the reminder on the role and responsibilities of the members of the Bureau, legal guidance and clarification was given by the representative legal officer, who highlighted that a principle of consistency in procedure shall be adopted in the elections, in which Ministers shall elect representatives by region and the Chairperson shall be elected from a region that has not yet been represented in the COMY bureau. The legal officer reminded the plenary that should a consensus not be reached the vote shall be thrown back to the Member States, at which point a two-thirds majority shall be required as is in conformity with Section III, Rule 19 (1) of the Rules of Procedure of the Executive Council. Subsequent to which, the Ministers elected the members of the Bureau of COMY IV. The election process raised a lot of challenging issues involving regional rotation principles and alternate language balance for regions with more than one language. After a long debate, strong recommendation was made that the AU Commission develops written and clear rules and procedures to guide the election of the Bureau of the Ministers Conference. However, agreement was reached, in which the outgoing Chairperson reaffirmed the principle of rotational regional representation, the result of which for the following composition for the Bureau of COMY IV to cover the period of 2012-2014 is as follows:

Chairperson	Central Region	Congo
1 st Vice-Chairperson	Western Region	Cote d'Ivoire
2 nd Vice-President	Southern Region	Swaziland
3 rd Vice-Chairperson	Northern Region	Tunisia
Rapporteur	Eastern Region	Rwanda

13. The outgoing Chairperson expressed the wish to find a space in the programme of work and offer opportunity to the ministers of each region to meet and agree on a working strategy for the next two years. Then, he informed the conference about the newly elected members of the Bureau of COMY IV, congratulated them and handed over to new Chairman.

Item III: ADOPTION OF THE AGENDA AND PROGRAMME OF WORK

14. The agenda and programme of work were adopted without amendment.

Item IV: CONSIDERATION OF THE VARIOUS PROGRESS REPORTS ON THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE LAST TWO YEARS

15. Three progress reports (from the African Union Commission, the Pan African Youth Union and the Bureau of the COMY III) respectively stressed on achievements under respective mandate. It is noted that a lot has been accomplished from April 2010 to September 2012. The detailed reports are attached for more information.

Item V: YOUTH POPULATION: OPPORTUNITY OR THREATPanel 5.1 - Preparing for 2032: Africa's Demographic Window

16. The Ministers of Youth of Africa took note of the session on Demographic Dividends presented at the 4th Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Youth and acknowledge that this is a new concept in Africa. However, they did observe that the opportunities for Africa are immense if the critical issues underlying our demographics especially those relating to the young generation are addressed.

17. Africa is experiencing the most rapid urbanization in the world and remains a young population with 35% of its 1 billion people between the ages of 15-34. This number is said to double by 2045. Another dimension is the projected "demographic window" that may set-in by 2032, the case where there is a decrease in the ratio of dependent child per working age adults: thus, if current fertility trends remain the same. However, recent data shows this might not be the case earlier or later, nevertheless, further analysis is required.

18. The presentation focused on what is to happen to a population structure for a dividend to happen. The presentation further highlighted a series of policy changes that need to happen if Africa is to achieve a demographic dividend. Accordingly, a coordinated effort is necessary, including investments in education, good governance, health and economic policies. Of critical importance for the dividend to be achieved includes political will, development planning strategies, changes in social norms and resources.

Issues Raised

19. Achieving a demographic dividend is not automatic but takes some strategies: i) Peer to peer grassroots based programmes are a critical approach in countries where access to health and education is minimal; ii) political will at higher level to be used as opportunities to engage with respective government ministries that deal with youth issues; iii) necessity to repackage family planning to ensure that we reap a demographic dividend from a healthy and educated youth population.

Recommendations

20. National Institutions in charge of Youth are requested to:

- a) Participate in the 2013 round of National level data collation and analysis on the status of Youth, with counter-part support from the African Union Commission and its development partners;
- b) Open the dialogue on the cost-benefit of understanding and investing on the unmet need to collate, organize and analyse the trends and projections on youth at population level;
- c) Promote multi-sectoral approaches and change of paradigm: invest in youth capacity and strengthen young women education, sensitization and awareness on health matters including abolishing child marriages;
- d) The AUC and ECA take this issue further to specifically look at policy recommendations for African Governments to be able to adequately address the challenges of the young people and the opportunities possible from the demographic window;
- e) The issue of demographic dividends to be brought to the attention of the African Ministers Finance and Economic Planning at their next AU/ECA Conference of Ministers of Finance and Economic Planning.

The AU/Assembly/Decl.1(VII) of 2011 mandated the Commission in collaboration with AfDB and other International organizations to develop a partnership towards addressing the situation of Youth unemployment and underemployment in Africa and guarantee decent work standards. This decision further seeks to implement the 2004 Ouagadougou Plan of Action on Youth and Women employment and the AU Youth Decade Plan of Action (2009-2018) target on reducing Youth unemployment by 2% per annum. The initiative will intervene in the 3 following areas: i) Policy interventions, ii) Direct interventions and iii) Knowledge for Informed Action.
